His greatest anguish is to be separated from his heart's desire.

When Caleb refuses a vengeful goddess, she banishes his wife from the bonds of time, and Caleb must find his wife somewhere across the centuries before remaining drops of youthful potion run out and he must promise himself to the goddess for eternity. That's just the start of it in this collection, which opens with Caleb in "The Thirteenth Door."

In the next story, "The Lost Princess," an ancient Egyptian princess awakens, looking into the eyes of her unrequited lover. There are only two small problems: Her spirit is stuck inside her mummy in a museum exhibit, and her lover does not recognize that she is awake.

"Mizuki's Den of Dreams" takes us down a darker path, one in which Alice Hannigan can have the love and happiness she's always longed for... with one horrifying catch.

This collection ends with the achingly wistful "Requiem for an Immortal," drawing us up to the great beyond where a woman's soul mate prepares for his journey to the love they will share in mortal life.

When the greatest anguish is to be separated from the one you love, and the greatest triumph is to be reunited, how much would you be willing to sacrifice? How far would you travel across the bounds of time, space, and even that mysterious veil between life and death to be with the one you love?
