One of the most essential questions mankind has always wondered about is what makes an effective leader? Why is it that some people's presence alone demands that they be followed, while others seem to have difficulty making their dog follow them!

This book focuses on how you might develop the essential qualities of a leader. By saying “unlock,” we ought to define that leadership is, the different kinds of leaders, the implications of the different types of leadership, and the development of desired leadership qualities.

Often, leaders are not recognized until they eventually leave us. While great leaders are known to inspire employees and to initiate singular movement in organizations, their impact in our lives remains underappreciated until they go away. But do you need to actually leave your present company in order for your contributions to be “officially” recognized? More importantly, do we, as employees, need to see someone go before we see him as a leader?

Inside each of us lies leadership and self confidence, but it is our duty to unlock it!

We've known great people, and we've seen some of them pass on. Jobs, Mandela, Lincoln, and even Mao Zedong, are venerated as leaders in their own right. We have Lee Kwan Yu, Bill Gates, Jeff Bezos, Larry Page, and Kwon Oh Hyun as present – day individuals who are pushing organizational and political leadership to new heights. Do we need to be like them in order to be recognized as leaders?

We can all go on asking questions about leadership, but one fact remains: we are all endowed with the potential to lead. Because of that, we also have the potential to become great leaders. If you wallowed in such thought for a long time now, don't you think it's about time that you step up and rule the world?
