If you have ever dreamed of getting out from under all of the clutter of a lifetime of accumulated stuff, including your home, to become free to follow your bliss, this story is for you. How one couple, both writers, became, by choice, “homeless” gypsies will inspire you to revisit your lost dreams. With retirement looming, as their friends built larger and costlier to maintain homes, and joined senior citizen’s bowling teams, they asked themselves two crucial questions that led to their creation of a perfect retirement scheme. How important is climate to our retirement comfort and pleasure? How tied down to our stuff do we want to be? They chose perpetual summer and the freedom to experience new places and new adventures, first living on a boat and then dividing their year between renting in the Caribbean in winter and living on their boat in the summer. Their choices will inspire readers to reevaluate their own retirement choices. Lots of Full-color photos of Puerto Rico.
