Fred and Rose West - The House of Horror: Revised March 2016 (True Crime Book 8) Andrew Alexander

Between 1967 and 1987, Fred West, a British serial killer, raped, tortured and murdered twelve young women and girls; possibly many more. Initially he worked alone, but soon his second wife Rose collaborated in the torture and murder at the couple's home in Gloucester. Rose West also murdered Fred's stepdaughter Charmaine, from his first marriage, while her husband was serving a prison sentence for theft.

Their victims include their own children, women who lodged at their house and strangers they had picked-up off the streets.

Finally, arrested in February 1994, the police search of their house revealed an almost medieval tale of kidnapping, torture, rape, incest and murder; some of which the couple filmed.

This revised and newly illustrated review gives an insight into Fred and Rose West's lives and crimes, both as a study in its own right and as a stepping-stone to further research into the true crime genre.

The main aspects covered are:

- Fred West's Early Life
- Fred West's Marriage to Catherine "Rena" Costello
- Rose Lett's Early Life
- Fred West's Marriage to Rose Letts
- The Victims
- Investigation and Arrest
- Fred West's Suicide
- Rose West's Trial
- Rose West in Prison
